

Prevent Water Damaging Your Home

Leave a Comment / Gutter Cleaning / By Jordan

Gutter Cleaning Sydney may be top of mind today as we receive one month worth of rain in just one day. From reports, there are flooded streets across the city. Traffic is chaotic, we are being told to avoid going out. Gusts of wind are blowing hard and heavy droplets of water are in some cases going horizontal instead of vertical. The door just knocked as the courier driver delivered a package. By the time I got to the door, he was already running backed to the car soaking wet. Unfortunately, the gutter above him was blocked and water was spilling onto him, I guess we have to keep up with our Gutter Cleaning Sydney!

How to Avoid Floods

With the rain going in all sorts of directions it is inevitable to get where it should not, like inside my new delivery. Rain is a natural part of our lives unless you're in the country. We have designed our homes and cities to be able to deal with the rain. Sometimes we get a little more rain than we bargained for and due to inadequate systems of managing the water flow, we get the likes of flooding. Flooding on Roads happens when there is too much water for a drainage system to handle.

Small pipes and large volumes of water do not mix well together. If the pipes are blocked it adds to the chaos. So why do we want these drains to take the water away? Water is a major risk on the road, it can lead to serious injury, it can damage electricals, it can also damage the structural foundation of the road and surrounding building. Diverting this water through the storm drains helps alleviate this risk.

Why Gutter Cleaning In Sydney Right Now Is So Important

The weather is outrageous today! News distributors are warning people to be extra careful, looking at the Bureau of Meteorology you can see why. Like the roads that flood, the home has similar mechanisms in place to divert the water away to reduce risks. The roof has an apex that allows water to flow down. The tiles overlap and create a watertight layer to protect the house from any leaks. Like the storm drains on the side of the road, the gutter can only handle so much traffic before they start to flood and allow water to get where it shouldn't potentially having negative effects of electric, structure, cosmetics, and hygiene of your home.

At the moment gutter cleaning in Sydney is the best way to prevent this from happening! Once they get full they water cannot run through as easily, it will back up and go where it was not intended. The guttering system is there to divert the water away from your home so as not to cause any structural damage.

What To Do About Gutter Cleaning

Time and time again insurance companies will stress why it is important to clean your gutter regularly. Areas of attention are the entire guttering system, the downpipes, floor drains, and storm drains. If any link in the chain is inefficient it will have a compounding effect on the rest. Taking no action on your gutters can be very costly. After a lot of rain is a great time to do some maintenance as you will be able to tell where the trouble spots are and if there is water getting where it shouldn't. If the gutters have not been cleaned regularly they can come off their support and become ineffective.

This is due to the water not being diverted in the right direction.

It is vital to protect your home from the elements as it, in turn, protects you. Likewise, you should protect yourself. Gutter Cleaning is a dangerous job and should be left to the professionals. Get in touch with us today with any inquiries you might have and well happily get back to you as soon as we can.
